

Dinka Pignon works with spatial video installations within the field of mixed reality. Her large-scale video projections reshape the architecture of the space, creating illusory effects over physical objects. Operating on the borderline between the real and the virtual, her work reflects a strong affinity for the phenomenal, the liminal, the conceptual, and the minimal.

Over the past 40 years, Dinka has produced a substantial body of work that has been exhibited internationally and featured in publications across Europe, the United States, and Canada.

Alongside her artistic practice, she has produced, coordinated, and curated interdisciplinary art events, festivals, experimental workshops, and international exchange programs. Committed to artist-run culture, she has spent most of her professional life working in artist-run centres: 15 years at Fylkingen for New Music and Intermedia Art in Stockholm and 10 years at VIVO Media Arts Centre in Vancouver. She now lives in Victoria, British Columbia, Canada.
